

Journey with the Rays... Countdown January 2012!

Hello Friends!

We are so excited to share what God has been doing and hope it encourages you as well! This has been a long and trying road as we share our ministry and see God raise up supporters. Each step of the way we can choose to see God's hand in it all or focus on the unseen, we have to make a choice daily to trust Him. It is so easy to get discouraged when we take our eyes off of him. We have been making appointments and sharing with people the God we serve and how there is No other explanation for the things happening in this journey than it being God. He has been tugging on peoples hearts to partner with us and He has raised up the funds to ship our crates and He has raised the money to purchase our plane tickets and He will get us to the 85% mark. We would like to share that we recently hit 50% and are so grateful for those of you who felt God's prompting and you responded. God is so good and will bless you for living to serve Him!

We love you guys! If you need prayer or want to share how you have been encouraged by God in you life we would love to hear from you!

Love the Rays
