

I just realized that I haven't given anyone the "latest" on my knee for about a week now. If there wasn't anything to say, I wouldn't...however...the MRI revealed a completely severed ACL, strained MCL, and bruised bones!! Therefore, surgery is now in my future. I was a bit frustrated, but have had some time to relax and refocus. I'm sure that I will get anxious as the surgery date gets closer (Nov 4th), but for now I am resting in Him and His plan! I would definitely appreciate your continued prayers. I haven't ever had surgery...or even twisted an ankle before this for that matter... so I am a bit apprehensive, though I know I am in His capable Hands. He knows about all the details both physically and financially! (the things that tend to get "worried" about!) Also, being the mom that is "down" isn't going to be easy, but I have an amazing hubby that I know will be a huge help plus some pretty incredible kids that are also good at taking care of mom! J Appreciate you ALL and your love and care! Anything we can keep you in prayer about?! Let us know...we love you!

We love you...each one!

~Missy for the Schroeder family